Hold Triple Service for Tragedy Victims

K. of C., Legion and Community Join to Honor Dead

Edward Douglas Branch, who received his B. A. degree from the University of Iowa in 1924 and his M. A. degree in June, has spent the past eight weeks teaching in the summer session of the State College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts at Stillwater, Okla. He has returned recently to Iowa City where he is spending a few weeks in study.

Louis Peizer, associate professor of history, said, "Branch has a brilliant future." Branch was a 1930 graduate of the university and a member of the Kappa Sigma fraternity.

River May Hide Animal Cemetery

Museum of University Receives Jaw of Old Mostodon

That the Des Moines river below Ottumwa may be the cemetery of one or more mastodonts, mammoth elephant-like creatures that once roamed Iowa, is the belief of University of Iowa geologists.

The lower jaw of a mastodon, a great horse shoe shaped bone bearing teeth weighing several pounds and itself measuring three feet in length, has been brought to the museum here and is being restored. It is thought to be one of the largest in existence.

Mr. Ben Hur Wilson, Iowa Wesleyan trustee, has pointed out that the hip and two ribs of a similar animal were discovered near the same spot in 1859 by Rev. E. C. Brooks now rest in the museum at Mt. Pleasant.
